

Duncan's Special Day

DECADES of service to the church and local community by a Hethersett village stalwart were celebrated in St Remigius Parish Church.

Over 200 invited guests came together to celebrate Duncan Pigg's 90th birthday on April 6th. The evening featured a concert by Hellesdon and Sprowston Brass with works ranging from pop and show classics to brass band marches.

Introducing the evening, John Head from the parish church paid tribute to Duncan's years of service. "Reaching the age of 90 is an outstanding achievement for such a stalwart of village life. Duncan has been the bedrock for so many things in Hethersett that we enjoy today.

"It is fitting that Duncan's birthday should be celebrated in this church and with music. Many will know Duncan from his pantomime scripts, as a former parish councillor, a church warden and lay reader and through his association with cricket. He has been closely involved with music as a member of Norwich Cathedral Choir, choir-master at Hethersett and in choosing music for the annual village pantomime. It has all helped to bring music into our lives," Mr Head said.

Duncan himself reflected on what he referred to as "a wonderful life" built on four main factors – his job, his church, his village and the support of his wife Jenny.

“I have been very lucky to have been involved in so many good things,” he said.

Duncan’s unceasing work in the local community was marked by the award of the British Empire Medal in the 2013 New Year’s Honours.

Former Rector of Hetherset and a close friend of Duncans, the Rev Michael Sexton, proposed a birthday toast and pointed out that Duncan’s birthday falls just 15 days before the 90th birthday of the Queen:

“Duncan and the Queen have many things in common, not the least of which is their selfless service. Duncan has achieved so much, always with cheerfulness and a willingness to serve the community,” he said.

Church Warden Kate Wood also praised Duncan for his contributions to church and village life. Donations given during the evening will go towards the parish church roof repair fund. .

Duncan was awarded the British Empire Medal (B.E.M) for services to the community which at the time of the award included producing and writing the annual village pantomime for 40 years, during which time over £80,000 was raised for various charities.

Duncan was also praised for being a leading light in Hetherset musical circles, President of Hetherset and Tas Valley Cricket Club, Reader Emeritus for Hetherset Parish Church (where he has been a licensed reader for 56 years) and choirmaster for 35 years and a former governor of Hetherset High School and Hetherset Woodside Infants and Nursery School

Quite A Performance

In 2007 we interviewed Duncan Pigg about his role in Hethersett Pantomime. Here we reproduce part of that interview

When Duncan Pigg wrote his first pantomime in 1970 he never dreamed that he would still be coming up with ideas and scripts almost four decades later.

Duncan's 38th Hethersett Pantomime will be performed in the village hall from January 20th to 27th. There will be nine performances of Jack and the Beanstalk. Duncan admits that his enthusiasm has never waned over the years.

"I never seem to run out of ideas. I have a whole year to think about things and there's always current trends that can be included. I start thinking about the panto in the summer and we have a pre-production meeting in September and kick around ideas from there," he said.

Over the years the number of people involved in the productions has more than doubled. The 1970 version of Sleeping Beauty involved 33 people. This year over 70 will be involved either on stage or off.

It will also mark a landmark for producer Sarah Wright who will be in charge of her 10th panto. The Wright/Pigg partnership continues to flourish as the productions become much more hit-tech with computer graphics helping to plan scenery this year.

"When we started we had four pieces of 8 by 4 hardboard which we switched around. Now thanks to grants from South Norfolk District Council and the village hall management committee we have automatic back drops and superb scenery thanks to the skill of Colin Wilson," Duncan said.

Over the years the panto has raised almost £50,000 for various charities. Last year's charities to benefit included Musical Keys, St Matthew's House, Friends of Woodside First School, Hethersett Middle School PTA, Hethersett Parish Church, Hethersett Methodist Church and Wymondham Roman Catholic Church.

This year both the script and scenery contain local and topical references and there will be one or two surprises along the way.

Sarah explained that as producer one of her major satisfactions is seeing members of the cast develop:

"We see people with potential and try pantomime is reflected in the fact that people attend from all over Norfolk as well as from the north of England and the London area. Two former Hethersett residents have also travelled from their home in Turkey.

If you ask Duncan and Sarah what makes a good pantomime, they are very swift to put together a list of ingrediand bring them on. We have a huge range of age groups taking part and they mix so well together. We have a lovely group of children. It is great that youngsters can go on stage and do something for the community," Sarah said.

So what does pantomime mean to Duncan and Sarah:

"I love the variety of being able to use different music. I have a wide taste in music and our pantos are very musical," Duncan said. Indeed the first ever pantomime was referred to as "A musical fairy tale."

"I still find it great fun and it is wonderful that the teenagers still accept me at the age of 80," Duncan said.

"We really don't have any prima donnas," Sarah added.

The success of Hethersett's annual ents which include the following:

- Good music
- Originality
- A good storyline
- Entertainment and above all
- A sense of fun.

Indeed panto gives the audience the chance to forget the stressed and strains of modern life for a few hours - it is pure escapism.

Duncan is already thinking about pantomime 39 in 2008.

"The group is in such great shape that they could carry on without me," he added.

I think that Duncan is just being too modest!

Natural Hedge For Memorial Field

A new hedge has been planted on Hethersett Memorial Playing Field using natural British hedgerow plants.

A working party of volunteers put the new hedge in place on April 1st thanks to a grant from Busseys Motor Dealers who plant a tree for every car they sell.

The Hethersett planting took place under the auspices of the South Norfolk tree wardens' scheme and South Norfolk Council chairman David Bills, who represents Hethersett, was on hand to dig in the first of the 270 plants which will enclose the current croquet lawn and separate it from football pitches.

The hedgerow plants used include Hornbeam, Dogwood, Maple, Hawthorn, Spindleberry, Dogrose, Hazel and Alder.

Were You Fooled?

So were you fooled by our spoof article in the April edition?

The article about the remaining Beatles appearing in Hethersett Village Hall was of course an April fool..

Middle School Reunion

HETHERSETT Middle School staff from the past got together at Park Farm Hotel for a re-union buffet lunch.

The event was organised by retired teachers Anna Hallam and Sharon Felding. Nineteen teachers and ancillary staff attended what could be the first of a number of reunions.

All the staff were employed at the Middle School (now Hethersett Junior School) during the time that Tim Strugnell was Head Teacher.

“The more mature you get the more you realise the importance of connections. We shared a very worthy occupation over many years and cared for and taught thousands of children. There is a special bond between special people who have been through thick and thin together,” Sharon Fielding said.

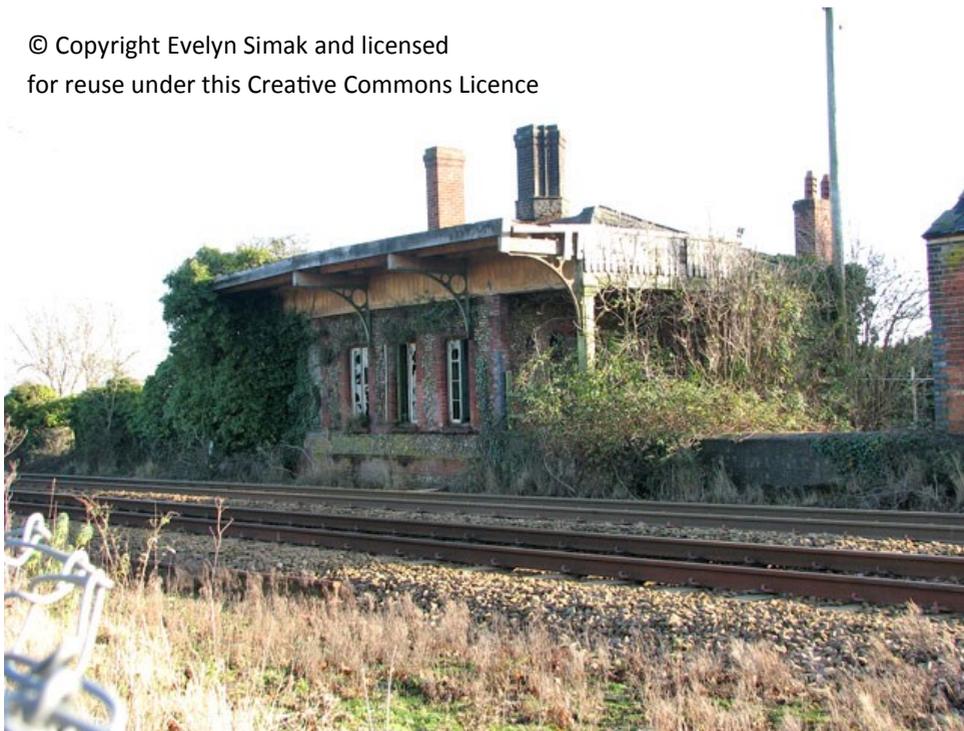

Tim Strugnell paid tribute to all those he had worked with:

“You were a fantastic group of people to work with and we did have such fun,” he said.

Hethersett Railway Station

HETHERSETT Railway Station was built in 1845 and in the 1960s as many as 12 trains a day in each direction stopped there.

Hethersett was on the Great Eastern Railway main line between Norwich and Thetford/Ely. In the sixties the majority of trains stopping there were part of the Norwich to King's Lynn/Wells Next the Sea service.

The station was almost 2 km from the main part of the village, down what is now Station Lane which is divided by the main A11. In 1966 the station was considered to be surplus to requirements and was closed. The platforms were removed. For a time the station buildings were used as part of a tyre store. Subsequently the station building was left derelict and photographs of its poor state are available on the web site

Another interesting part of the station's history saw sidings put into place leading to a Ministry of Defence oil depot during the Second World War.

The photographs for this feature unless otherwise stated were either provided or taken by Hethersett archivist and we are grateful to Gary for permission to reproduce them

Library Celebrates Queen's Birthday

HETHERSETT Library celebrated the Queen's 90th birthday on April 21st with a street party with a difference - it was held inside.

Coffee, tea, cakes mingled with bunting and bright displays as residents joined in the celebration.

There were also arts and crafts for younger visitors. The refreshments were provided by library staff. The tea party started at 2 pm and went on until 6 pm. The photograph at the top of the page shows residents enjoying the festivities

In the evening, chairman of South Norfolk Council David Bills, who also represents Hethersett, was on hand to light one of thousands of beacons at South Norfolk House in Long Stratton..

Before the lighting of the beacon there was a concert by Hellesdon and Sprowston Brass Band. The evening also featured stalls and activities for children.

The photograph above was taken during a children's activity day at Hethersett library in the 1980s and is reproduced with the library's permission. New Name for Publication

YOU will notice that from this issue we have changed the name of this e-magazine to Hethersett Herald. We employed some of the brightest brains known to manind to come up with a name that reflected what we are trying to achieve. In the end we hit on the name Hethersett Herald for no other reason that it was a piece of alliteration. Hethersett Herald is published electronically on the first day of each month. It is available via the village web site at www.hethersett.org.uk

Outstanding Academy Visit

CHAIRMAN of South Norfolk Council David Bills, who is one of two Hetherset district councillors, visited Hetherset Academy to find out exactly why the school has been rated “Outstanding” by OFSTED just a couple of years after being put in special measures for being a failing school. In this article David explains what he found at the Academy and also some of the other important events he has attended recently in his official capacity.

Remembering Ralph

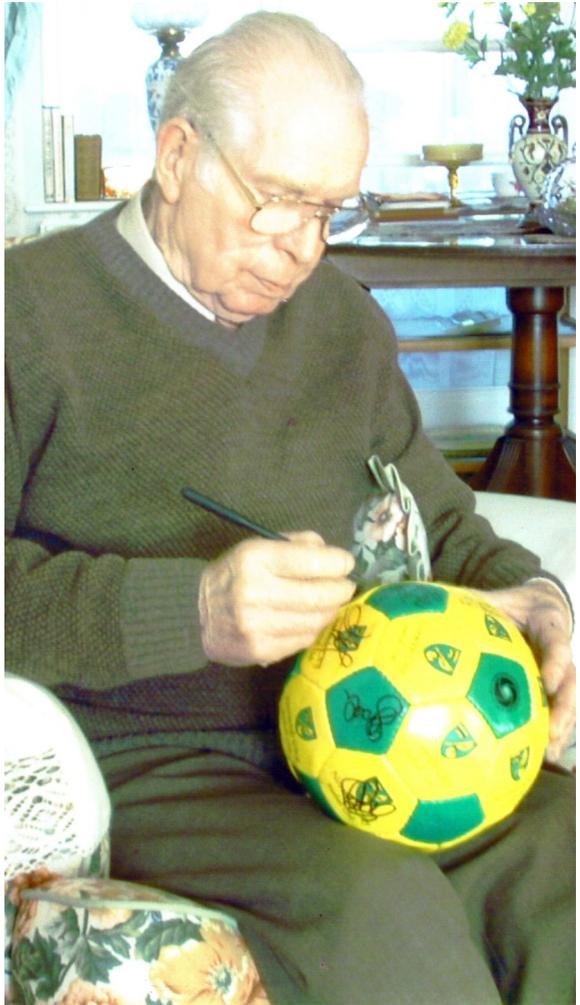

A FEW years ago Hethersett - A Norfolk Village on the Web interviewed Ralph Johnson who still holds the record for the fastest goal ever scored at Carrow Road. Sadly Ralph died three years ago at the age of 91. Here we reproduce that interview.

WHEN it comes to scoring goals, Norwich City's greatest player is arguably a relatively unknown centre forward who today lives in retirement in Hethersett.

Ralph "Ginger" Johnson doesn't appear in any of the club record books for the simple fact that he was at the height of his goalscoring powers when the Second World War intervened.

Ralph was just 17 when war broke out and ruined his chances of a glittering career. His scoring statistics during the war years are quite astonishing. In wartime friendlies and regional competitions Ralph's scoring exploits became legendary.

He hammered 123 goals in just 107 matches and that included five hat-tricks, two hauls of four, two fives and two double hat-tricks. He once scored in 19 successive Norwich City games and in another spell found the net in 24 out of 25 matches. He still holds the record for the fastest ever goal at Carrow Road – 10 seconds against Leyton Orient in 1946.

Today Ralph has forgotten most of the goals but the 10 seconder remains vividly in his memory.

"I tapped the ball to Noel Kinsey and he played it back to me and I hit it from close to the halfway line. It could have gone into the river or the stands but on this occasion it did a Beckham and sailed into the net. My mother was there and thought it had been a false start when Orient kicked off," Ralph said.

Today at the age of 85 Ralph still has a remarkable memory of those days. There may not have been any official league football, but Ralph found himself playing against some of the country's top players who were stationed in different parts of the country. He remembers the likes of Sir Stanley Matthews, Dennis Compton, Alf Kirchen and Alex James. Indeed legendary Liverpool manager Bill Shankly guested three times for Norwich City under an assumed name!

Ralph was born in Hethersett in April 1922 and has lived virtually all his life in the village. As a youngster, athletics was his first passion and he met with some success in this as a pupil of the old British School in the village, competing at virtually every distance imaginable.

His brother Edward was a keen footballer and would rope the young Ralph into playing and by the age of 10 he was playing for Hethersett's men's team against local sides such as Ketteringham, Little Melton, Bawburgh and Barnham Broom. Ralph was already a precocious footballer.

"One day I ran into a player in the centre of the pitch and then ran down the wing with the ball only to get hit by a woman with an umbrella who told me I had hit her little Willie. I was old for my age," Ralph laughed. He honed his football skills by kicking the ball against a wall and didn't have to wait long for his first big break:

"When I reached the age of 14 a man named Revell who was a butcher at Wymondham asked me to go to Chesterfield to play. This was just before the war. I don't know what his connection with Chesterfield was but it took me over five hours on the train to get there," Ralph said.

He went on to play two seasons at Chesterfield as an amateur against the likes of Barnsley, Sheffield, Doncaster and various clubs from the south of England.

At Chesterfield he lodged with Joseph Spence, a famous former Manchester United player who made 510 appearances for the club, scoring 168 goals. Ralph also worked as a garage mechanic until war broke out and at the age of 17 he returned to his native Norfolk to work as an engineer for Laurence and Scotts in Norwich.

"I was earning 2/6d (just under 13p in today's money) a week and having to cycle to and from Hethersett, seven days a week when I was approached to play for Norwich. There I got to make £3.50 on a Saturday afternoon with an extra £1 if we won and 10/- (50p) if we drew.

So Ralph continued to play football on a Saturday and work for Laurence and Scotts until he was old enough to join the forces and went for his medical.

"The first two doctors passed me A1 but the third categorised me as C3 which I couldn't understand until he told me he was the Norwich City club doctor and they weren't about to lose me to the services.”

Competitions during the war years were slightly haphazard affairs but Ralph remembers travelling to Queens Park Rangers, Leyton Orient and playing in front of 20,000 people at Carrow Road.

During the war years Ralph was described as being brilliant near goal with scoring ability akin to a metronome. Ralph looks back on those days with great affection:

“They were marvellous times. When we scored a goal we just touched hands. There was none of this kissing and cuddling like today. We had to go to matches either by coach or train. The only places we got a hotel stay were down in Torquay or Plymouth. We would travel for hours, play the match and then travel back. We played football for the love of the game. Matches went on even though London was being bombed.”

Ralph eventually signed professional forms for Norwich City on 17th May 1946 and made 23 league and cup appearances for the Canaries, scoring 10 goals. His professional debut was against Ipswich Town on September 7th, 1946.

In April 1947 Leyton Orient made a bid for him and he moved to London.

“I received £450 for the transfer, but I’m not sure how much Norwich received. At Orient I was earning £8 a week,” he said.

Ralph stayed at Orient for two seasons before returning to Norfolk to play non league football for Lowestoft Town where he suffered a broken jaw which effectively ended his playing days, apart from a few local matches.

With his football career behind him Ralph used his engineering skills to good effect, setting up business in Hethersett to make concrete moulds for coal bunkers and employing seven people.

As the company expanded, Ralph moved his business interests to Silfield just outside Wymondham where he operated as Castle Moulded Products and Johnson Engineering. He also had a garage.

Today he rarely gets to a football game, although he was the second oldest player behind Bernard Robinson to be involved in the Canaries centenary celebrations in 2002 and was also introduced to the crowd before the heritage match between Norwich City and Ipswich Town Veterans last season.

Ralph is aghast at the amount of money in the game today; “I’m sure with players on huge sums of money, the last thing they want to do is get hurt. We played for the love of the game, although it was good to earn a little money. The game was very hard when we played it. You could barge the goalkeeper, a wet ball would weigh over five pounds and the boots were heavy with solid toe caps.”

However the game evolves in the future, Ralph is assured of a place in Norwich City history. It is unlikely that anybody will ever erase his fastest goal record which has already stood for over 60 years.

Hethersett Connections World-wide

No 1 - Reigate, England by Georgette Vale

THERE are many instances of the name Hethersett cropping up in the most unusual places. In a new series we look at places with a connection to the village name and also people who have taken the name to the far corners of the earth. We start the series relatively near home with Wymondham historian Georgette Vale's memories of a college in Reigate Surrey.

From 1956 to 1992 there was a further education college for visually impaired young people called Hethersett at 32 Gatton Road, Reigate.

I went there on placement in 1985 when I was training to teach independence skills to blind and partially sighted people. Being inquisitive I asked where the name Hethersett came from - or what it meant. I was told it was the name of the original house before it became a college and that the original owner of the house "came from some place in Norfolk."

For many years in my mind that is what Hethersett meant and, when I came to live in Wymondham in 1997, it took me quite a while to remember that Hethersett was not the college but the village between Wymondham and Norwich.

In 1992 the college moved to Philanthropic Road in Redhill, not far away, and it became more specialised for those with special needs in addition to the visual impairment. There is still a centre there called Hethersett, so the name lives on. It also seems that the grounds of the house have been sold for development and there is now a Hethersett Close on the site.

It seems that the original house belonged to Julius Auerbach and the family did not claim it so the secretary left it to the RNIB.

Further research has established that the house was built in the 1850s and in the late 19th century was owned by architect Robert C. Baxter until he died in 1894. Then it became the property of the Auerbach family with Julius living there with his wife Helena from 1894 until 1956. The home was subsequently left to a secretary and then the RNIB in 1952.

Unfortunately to date we have not been able to find out just how Hethersett got its name. Any information would be gratefully received.

Is Edward Scissorhands Coming Our Way?

STORIES have been circulating in certain areas of the Media that legendary American actor Johnny Depp will soon be living close to Norwich. But it appears that it is all a hoax perpetrated by the mock website Daily News 11. The story on that web site was as follows.

NORWICH, England – In a huge surprise to everyone in Los Angeles, Hollywood actor Johnny Depp reveals in a new interview that he is moving to the Norwich, England area. He tells the magazine that he is “tired of the L.A. lifestyle” and is looking for a big change in life.

“I’m just tired of the L.A. lifestyle and I feel like, at this point in my life, I’d rather just live in a place full of real, genuine people. I’ve been to Norwich a couple of times over the years and the people there are real... they’re genuine, and yeah every community has its problems but the people there are good, decent people and they care about their community. Those are the things I find most important in deciding where to live,” Depp told the magazine.

“I’m not retiring, I’m just looking for a change in life and I think I’ve found that in Norwich,” Depp reassured fans. Let us know what you think in the comments section below especially if you’re a resident of the Norwich, England area.

So sadly it looks as if Depp won’t be coming to Hethersett!

Listening to the News

NEWS from Hethersett is often included in the weekly output from the Wymondham and Attleborough Talking Newspaper, which is one of 12 independently-run Talking Newspaper (TN) groups in Norfolk and one of more than 500 across the United Kingdom. A group of 50 volunteers produce a weekly local news and information service in audio format for blind and partially sighted people in and around Wymondham and Attleborough. The service is free and is also available to those for whom reading a newspaper is difficult because of a disability or health condition. The group concentrates on local news for the area including Hethersett, Mulbarton, Bunwell, Hingham, New Buckenham, Old Buckenham, Attleborough and Wymondham and the surrounding villages.

The Wymondham and Attleborough Talking Newspaper has recorded well over 900 editions and is available via post or the group's web site at www.watn.org.uk

The Talking Newspaper marked its 18th anniversary by hosting a regional conference of Talking Newspaper (TN) producers. Delegates from TN groups across the Eastern Counties gathered at the Town Green Centre in Wymondham on Saturday April 9th for a selection of presentations, workshops and information sharing.

The recently appointed CEO of the Norfolk and Norwich Association for the Blind, Mike Talbot and Regional Manager for the Macular Society, Colin Daniels, were speakers.

Peter Steward (Hethersett website and online village magazine) and Su Leavesley (Forncett Flyer) contributed to the discussions on local news gathering and ex-BBC producer, Jessica Thurtell, offered guidance on reader presentation techniques.

The Mayors of both towns, Joe Mooney (Wymondham) and Tony Perkins (Attleborough) were present, as were Town Criers Pete Green (Wymondham) and Mike Wabe (Thetford and Brandon), who are both TN volunteers.

A presentation of a Certificate of Appreciation was made to retiring Wymondham and Attleborough Talking Newspaper volunteer, Marie Stevenson, during the course of the opening address. Marie was a very active member of the Hethersett Community prior to moving with husband Paul to Castle Acre three years ago. She produced a video record of Hethersett at the millennium and was a leading light in Hethersett Pantomime Group.

Any reader wanting more information about the Wymondham and Attleborough Talking Newspaper should contact their secretary Georgette Vale or chairman Tony Vale on 01953 605434 or visit www.watn.org.uk. Georgette has also written a special feature on a Hethersett-Reigate connection and you can read this on page Village Forum- A Village Forum to view plans for proposed new development in the village was held on May 13th. Doubts now exist, however, over the legitimacy of the Greater Norwich Development plan. One of Hethersett's representatives on South Norfolk District Council, David Bills, has also hit out in the Media about the development. .

Bells Dedication -The weekend of May 22nd/23rd will be a very important one for St Remigius Parish Church. The church will be holding its annual gift weekend and on Saturday at 3.30 p.m the Bishop of Thetford, the Rt Rev Dr Alan Winton, will dedicate the refurbished church bells and clock in a special service. After the service the church tower (excluding the roof) will be open to visitors.

Overhanging Trees Warning -Hethersett Parish Council is asking residents to trim back overhanging trees. "The growing season is upon us and the parish council is asking residents to cut back trees and shrubs that are overhanging footways and street lights. This can cause difficulties for pedestrians and affects the quality and impact of street lighting," said parish clerk Ian Weetman. The council will be writing to those who do not comply with the request and may also enlist the help of Norfolk County Council in taking enforcement action. The council is also concerned at "inconsiderate parking" in the village: "Parking on verges, apart from the mess it causes, and on footways can be obstructive to footpath users with impaired abilities and dropped curbs are essential for users of mobility scooters," Mr Weetman added.

Views Needed - Hethersett Parish Council is asking residents for their views on the sports and recreation area around the Village Hall. The council is considering carrying out a refurbishment programme and is asking the public whether it wishes to continue with the existing set-up of sports and tennis court area or whether they would prefer something completely different.

Cricketers Close to a Giantkilling - Hethersett and Tas Valley cricket club went very close to a giantkilling when they lost to Norfolk Alliance Premier Division club North Runcton by one wicket in the prestigious Carter Cup competition.

Prepare for ipatter - ipatter is a new electronic business network with its headquarters in Little Melton.

Promotion for Hethersett Athletic - Hethersett Athletic Men's Saturday team made it two promotions in a row as they beat Northwold 2-1 on the Memorial Field to clinch runners-up slot in Division Three of the Crown Fire South and Central Norfolk League.

The Green Green Grass of Home - Hethersett Playing Field Bowls Club has installed a new sprinkler system thanks to a grant from the parish council.

Badminton Players Needed - A regular Thursday evening badminton group which plays at Hethersett Old Hall School is looking for new players. The group, which ranges from teenagers to pensioners, is informal and friendly, and there are no joining or membership fees with those taking part paying on the nights they attend School Spring Fete - Hethersett Junior School is holding its annual Spring Fair on Saturday from 10 a.m until 1 p.m. Once again it will be a family affair with attractions including a mega slide, barbecue, circus skills arena, dance competition, an inflatable Subbuteo pitch, an auction of promises, raffle, tombola and numerous side shows and stalls. Refreshments will also be on sale and admission is 50p with accompanied children free.

Hethersett Revealed

A series looking back at events of the past - Number One

A special weekend event - Hethersett Revealed - was held on Saturday 18th and Sunday 19th June, 2005.

The event was designed to give the public a chance to "Discover the past, Enjoy the present and Welcome the future."

Numerous special events were lined-up with displays by local groups, a fete in the grounds of Hethersett Hall and much much more.

The community event was part of the St Remigius Church Development and Repair Appeal (CHUDARA). Throughout the weekend plans for the development were on display in the church and a model was on display in the village hall on the Sunday.

The sun shone throughout the two days with temperatures approaching and even getting into the 90s.

A grand opening ceremony took place in Oak Square at 10 a.m on the Saturday when the village crier and the Rector of Hethersett combined to kick the weekend off with the help of a vintage fire engine.

St Remigius Church

Throughout the day there was an exhibition of Hethersett Life Past, Present and Future. This included baptisms, weddings, anniversaries, archive material, a domestic history of Hethersett and displays by the cricket team and Hethersett Hawks Cycle Speedway Club. There were also tours of the church, music, singing, handbells and visits to the ringing chamber. Teas, coffee and soft drinks were also served.

The church also featured a competition for children to find 10 ducks hidden in the church.

Status boost for thriving village club

Many months of hard work by Hethersett Badminton Club has paid off with the presentation of a national award.

The club is the first within a 25-mile radius of Norwich to be awarded Badminton England Premier Club Clubmark's status.

The club meets on Thursday evenings at Hethersett Academy from 6.30 until 7.30pm for beginners and adults wishing to improve and at Hethersett Old Hall School from 8 until 9pm for advanced juniors.

"The award is a tribute to all the hard work and commitment of the coaches and volunteers. It is recognition that we are now a major coaching facility for the sport," said chairman Peter Hout. "We currently have almost 90 youngsters between the ages of seven and 13 being coached regularly. The award shows that we provide the safe environment for everyone to enjoy the sport. It helps parents and carers to know that there are choosing the right club for young people."

Hethersett Badminton Club was founded in the 1980s and last coach David Bunn has led the top class coaching, final ages from seven, since 2012.

The club currently has two level two coaches, a level one coach and two other players who are working towards their coaching badges. All coaches have first aid, safeguarding children and up to date DBS certification.

Anyone wishing to take advantage of the facilities that the club has to offer should get in touch with Peter Hout on 01603 81329 or email hethersett@aol.com. The club maintains a simple informational website at www.hethersettbadminton.co.uk

Bench marks First World War

A south Norfolk village is celebrating the addition of a new bench to commemorate the centenary of the First World War. Money for the iron seat, which is in the centre of the village, was raised by the Hethersett Environmental Action Team (HEAT) at the village open gardens event last year.

HEAT members celebrated the bench's arrival to the village with a Clean for the Queen litter pick, which helped clean up the village in time for the Queen's 90th birthday celebrations in June. Eighteen Hethersett men lost their lives in the war and are commemorated on the village war memorial in the grounds of the parish church.

To find out more about these men, visit www.hethersettwar.weebly.com/they-gave-their-lives-1914-18.html

HEAT is a group of volunteers who got together in 2000 initially to carry out daffodil planting along the main road through the village.

Village crime report is presented

Hethersett remains a very safe place to live with just nine crimes reported in the period from February 15 to March 20, the parish council heard.

PCSO Darren Sore reported on a smashed car window in St David's Road.

Cannabis had been found on drivers stopped at Thickthorn Services and Little Melton Road, a gate was damaged in Muriel Kenny Court and a number of vehicles had sustained damage in Southcroft after being driven into.

The ninth crime revolved around an argument between two parents at a Hethersett school.

Hethersett Parish Council chairman Jackie Sutton said: "Hethersett continues to be a low crime area."

The parish council is making an audit of how many trees in the village have tree protection orders. People can apply to the district council to have protection orders placed on trees to safeguard them.

Volunteers plant hedge after grant bid is to be voted on

By Stuart Anderson
stuart.anderson@archant.co.uk

A new hedge has been planted on Hethersett Memorial Playing Field using natural British hedgerow plants.

A working party of volunteers put the new hedge in place on April 1 thanks to a grant from Busseys Motor Dealers who plant a tree for every car they sell.

The hedge planting took place under the auspices of the South Norfolk tree wardens' scheme at the leisure area in Recreation Road.

South Norfolk Council chairman David Bills, who represents Hethersett, was on hand to dig in the first of the 270 plants which make up the new hedgerow.

The plants are intended to enclose the current croquet lawn at the playing field and separate the area from nearby football pitches.

Varities of plants include dogwood, hawthorn, dogrose, hazel and ivy.

A McDonald's drive-through restaurant could be built at the new hawthorn.

The fast-food giant has submitted a planning application to South Norfolk Council, asking to develop land near the existing park and ride. The new site also include a Burger King, close to the dogrose, hazel and ivy.

all of these would be recruited from the local community.

The development would include 44 car parking spaces, the seating area would have 140 covers and the restaurant would use "natural and neutral" colours to integrate into its surroundings.

Other features of the application include cycle racks for customer use. Leslie Dale, South Norfolk Council member for Hethersett said: "I am unhappy about inadequate plans for 'All that being said, it does tidy up an unkempt area.'" what litter collection arrangements there would be.

There are seven other McDonald's restaurants within six miles of the site, including one at Longwater.

The application for the drive-through restaurant is set to be decided at a planning meeting at the council's headquarters in Long Stratton on April 27.

Since 2014 McDonalds has a target of 30 new restaurant openings per year, with most of them being drive-throughs.

School staff are reunited

Hethersett Middle School staff from the past got together at Park Farm Hotel for a reunion buffet lunch.

The event was organised by retired teachers Anna Hallam and Sharon Fielding.

Nineteen teachers and ancillary staff attended what the organisers hoped would be the first of many reunions.

All the staff were employed at the middle school – now Hethersett Junior School – during the time that Tim Strungell was head teacher.

Ms Fielding said she was delighted to see many teachers and staff she once worked with.

She said: "The more mature you get the more you realise the importance of connections.

"We shared a very worthy occupation over many years and cared for and taught thousands of children.

"There is a special bond between special people who have been through thick and thin together."

Mr Strungell paid tribute to all those he had worked with.

School's tree tribute to Mary

By Anthony Carroll
anthony.carroll@harchant.co.uk

Staff and pupils of Hethersett Old Hall School have dedicated a Norfolk heritage apple tree to the memory of the Rev Mary Kerslake, who had been closely associated with the school for many years.

Mrs Kerslake died in September last year and was widely acknowledged for her huge contribution to many aspects of village life in Hethersett and the Meltons.

Mrs Kerslake's husband Harold took a hand in the planting ceremony with rector of Hethersett, the Rev Derek McClean, offering a dedication prayer.

Headmaster Stephen Crump said: "Mary was a great friend to our school family and will be remembered with huge affection. We will greatly miss her at school assemblies and events such as our Christingle service, where her natural affinity with our youngest pupils was so clearly evident."

Mr Kerslake said: "Mary loved this place and especially enjoyed her work with the little ones in the lower school. It is very fitting to have a living memorial in the form of an apple tree that will live on and provide fruit the children can enjoy for years to come."

The apple tree, a Harling Red, is one of ten local heritage fruit trees the independent day and boarding school has planted in its historic orchard as part of a renovation programme, in partnership with the East of England Apples and Orchard Project.

Another tree, a cherry, is dedicated to the boarding community of the school and marks the school joining the Boarding Schools' Association's Boarding Orchards programme.

Nursery pupils at Hethersett Old Hall School also celebrated St Patrick's Day and enjoyed some special party bags kindly brought in by two of their classmates, Noah and Lottie, who come from Ireland.

The children have been learning about some Irish traditions thanks to the lucky shamrocks, toys and sweets in their goody bags.

Birthday boy Duncan is celebrated at church

Decades of service to the church and community by a Hethersett village stalwart were celebrated in St Remigius Parish Church.

More than 200 guests came together to celebrate Duncan Pigg's 90th birthday on April 6.

The evening featured a concert by Hethersett and Sproughton Brass with works ranging from pop and show classics to brass band favourites.

Introducing the evening, John Hoed from the parish church paid tribute to Mr Pigg's years of service.

He said: "Reaching the age of 90 is an outstanding achievement for such a vibrant of village life.

"Duncan has been the backbone for so many things in Hethersett that we enjoy today.

"It is fitting that Duncan's birthday should be celebrated in this church and with music. Many will know Duncan from his pantomime acts, as a former parish councillor, a church warden and lay reader and through his association with cricket. He has been closely involved with music as a member of Norfolk Cathedral Choir, choirmaster at Hethersett and in choosing music for the annual village pantomime. It has all helped to bring music into our lives."

Mr Pigg himself reflected on what he referred to as "a wonderful life" built on four main factors – his job, his church, his wife and the support of his wife Jenny.

Former Rector of Hethersett and Dean of Dunstons, Michael Saxon, proposed birthday toast and paid Mr Pigg's tribute in full.

He said: "Duncan and I have had many things in common, always with cheer and a willingness to serve community.

Church warden Kate Wo project Mr Pigg for his contributions to church life.

Donations given during birthday celebration are going towards the parish's repair fund."

Swimming Funding for Brothers

Two brothers who dream of swimming for England have received a cash boost to help them excel in their sport.

The Wymondham Mercury newspaper has reported on an award from South Norfolk Council's community sport achiever awards to Owen Woodrow, 13, and Owen Woodrow, 14. They have been given £175 which will pay for some of the costs of taking part in swimming contests.

Mum Helen Woodrow, said "Nathan already competes in swimming competitions and Owen, who has cerebral palsy, competes in regional disability events but is hoping to make the British Para-Swimming International Meet in Glasgow next month.

"Obviously as a family we want to support the boys but the costs involved are huge, such as travel, competition entry, club subscription fees and accommodation."

Nathan, who is aiming to qualify for the Amateur Swimming Association's national summer championships in Sheffield this year, said: "It's great that we are being helped in this way.

"The brothers are among 30 young people across the district who have received the grants, which can be valued up to £200.

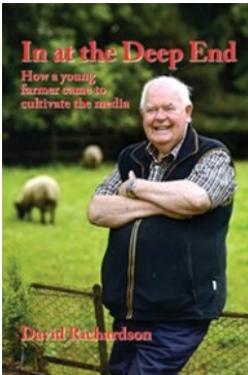

The council's deputy leader councillor Martin Wilby said he was delighted the scheme was helping the brothers as well as dozens of other keen young athletes.

Mr Wilby said: "Our sports achiever awards help young athletes and provide grassroots support to the voluntary sports sector in South Norfolk.

"We've invested thousands of pounds in supporting the district's young sports stars of the future. I'm pleased that these young swimmers from Hethersett, and the other 28 young people who received similar grants, will benefit from the scheme – they are certainly names to watch for the future."

The Community Sport Achiever Grants are open to young people who live in South Norfolk and are aged 18 and under, or 25 and under for disabled athletes. Applicants must be in full-time education be able to show that they excel in their sport.

David's In at The Deep End

WELL known local farmer and journalist David Richardson, who has close connections with Hethersett, has written his life story in a book published by Poppyland

David has been involved with Hethersett Methodist Church for many years and played a major part in Operation New Look which re-built and modernised the church. His father Robert was also a leading Hethersett Methodist and produced his own autobiography many years ago entitled "Some Fell on Stony Ground."

David's book charts almost 80 years of agricultural changes from food rationing to grain mountains, and the career of a man who became a driving force in countless industry initiatives.

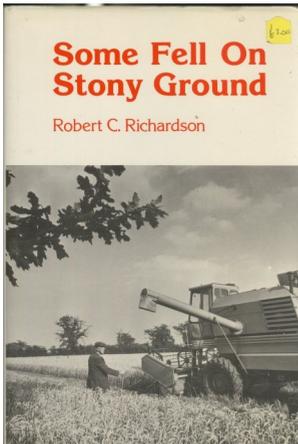

David used a fastidiously-filed collection of diaries in his loft to write the book. He says he felt a duty to record his life story for the benefit of his children and grandchildren. The book also contains a message for the industry on how it should face its future challenges.

"In some ways, it feels rather arrogant and presumptuous to think that someone wants to read about my life," David told the Media. "I'm just an ordinary old farm boy from Norfolk, but I have travelled around a lot and wherever I go, people always ask: 'How did you get into this job?'"

"The story of how I got into it was quite an interesting one. All the things I did subsequently were all done by diving in at the deep end – hence the title of the book. I just always happened to be in the right place at the right time. It was inability to say no."

Mr Richardson's farming career began as an entrepreneurial 10-year-old, eager to make a few pounds from one of his father's pigs in 1947. He rented his first farm in 1958 at Whiterails in Great Melton, west of Norwich.

After being recruited by Dick Joice to work on Anglia TV, he grasped every subsequent opportunity to develop his media career, working for BBC radio and writing columns for As his network of senior contacts developed, so did his influence in farming circles – with one of his proudest achievements being the formation of LEAF (Linking Environment and Food) in 1991, an organisation which he chaired for 10 years.

“Myself and two or three others realised we needed to do more than was being done on the public image of agriculture,” he said. “We were criticised severely by the green movement, sometimes justly, but sometimes unjustly. Look where that has gone now. It is in 37 countries and has a presence on 33pc of all the vegetables and fruit in this country which are LEAF-certificated.

“Because of Open Farm Sunday (organised by LEAF), a million and a half people have been on farms in the last 10 years. It has to be one of the most worthwhile things I have done for the industry and I have got a lot of pleasure out of it as well.

“Once you get out of the novelty of doing TV programmes, it can be a bore a lot of the time. It takes a lot of time and effort and you have to switch off being a farming personality and become a TV personality. But in doing that I have met some of the most fascinating people in our industry. That is a real privilege and it has led to a lot of other things.”

Mr Richardson was made an OBE for his work in 2000, and other accolades include becoming a Fellow of the Royal Agricultural Societies (FRAGS) and the Sir Timothy Colman award for promoting a wider understanding of farming and the countryside – presented by the Royal Norfolk Agricultural Association, of which he was president in 2003. He was recognised last year with a Lifetime Achievement honour at the national Farmer’s Weekly Awards.

The book reproduces a discussion paper, written by Mr Richardson in 2007, which outlines the urgent global challenges of food production for a growing population in a changing climate, demanding the right balance between science, economic policy and environmental sustainability. He said those challenges still remain.

“I hope it (the book) is an enjoyable read. I hope that just like the programmes I have done and the articles I have written, it is not too heavy. But I also hope that it leaves people with a little bit of food for thought about how important agriculture is, and maybe to try and influence those who make decisions on our industry to treat it a little better than they have done on the past, or are doing at the mo-

David Richardson’s book “In at the Deep End: How a young farmer came to cultivate the media”, is published by Poppyland Publishing and will be available at bookshops throughout East Anglia from Friday. It can also be ordered online at www.poppyland.co.uk.

A Remarkable War Story

A remarkable war story will be re-told in Hethersett Parish Church on Friday, 28th October at 7 pm.. The evening will feature the story of two soldiers from the Second Battalion Royal Norfolk Regiment, one of whom came from Dereham who survived the atrocity at Le Paradis. A powerpoint presentation will cover the events leading up to that fateful day, describing the events and how the perpetrators were tracked down.

The event is free with donations going to church funds. Light refreshments will be served. The presentation will be given by Dennis O’Callaghan (the son of one of the survivors), Nick Smith and John Head from the parish church. Every two years the trio go to Le Paradis to attend their Remembrance Day. The event attracts considerable Media interest on both sides of the channel-

The Le Paradis massacre was a war crime committed by members of the 14th Company, SS Division Totenkopf, under the command of Fritz Knöchlein. It took place on 27th May, 1940,, during the Battle of France, at a time when the British Expeditionary Force was attempting to retreat through the Pas-de-Calais region during the Battle of Dunkirk.

Soldiers of the 2nd Battalion, the Royal Norfolk Regiment, had become isolated from their regiment. They occupied and defended a farmhouse against an attack by Waffen-SS forces in the village of Le Paradis. After running out of ammunition, the defenders surrendered to the German troops. The Germans led them across the road to a wall, and machine-gunned them. Ninety-seven British troops died. Two survived, with injuries, and hid until they were captured by German forces several days later. After the war, Fritz Knöchlein was located, tried and convicted by a war crimes court, with the two survivors acting as witnesses against him. For his part in the massacre, Knöchlein was executed in 1949.

Date Set for Run The Square

This year's annual Hethersett two mile Run the Square funrun will take place on June 26th, members of Hethersett and the Meltons' Sports Association heard at its latest meeting. The funrun, which follows a square of the original village, is in its seventh year after being launched as part of an Open Weekend of events in support of the London 2012 Olympic Games. It regularly attracts over 200 runners of all ages and abilities.

Since 2010, Hethersett has continued to support sport, fitness, health and well being as part of the village's Olympic legacy. Entry to the run will be £3 for adults and £1.50 for Under-16s. Queen's Road, part of Great Melton Road, Mill Road, part of New Road and the Old Norwich Road will be shut for the duration of the run which will start and finish outside Hethersett Junior School. It will be led off by riders from Hethersett Hawks Cycle Speedway Club which is celebrating its Golden Jubilee this year.

Hethersett and the Meltons' Sports Association continues to support groups and individuals through grants and is hoping to set-up a new tennis club in the near future. Money from the association has seen clubs established in croquet, yoga, junior netball, table tennis and running and has also funded a petanque piste on Hethersett Memorial Playing Field. In addition the sports association has made grants to existing clubs. The association also takes a keen interest in local environmental issues.

"We started the association in response to the rallying cry in the build-up to the London Olympic Games. After the Games we were determined not to allow the ideas we had to die and now four years on we are continuing to help and support sports clubs, groups and individuals working together to improve the health and fitness levels of local people.

"We are delighted that, through the work of the association, hundreds of people have taken up regular exercise by joining new or existing clubs and groups. There is no doubt in our minds that this has helped to improve their general health," said association chairman Peter Steward.

Membership of Hethersett and the Meltons' Sports Association is open to clubs for a £5 annual membership and is free to individuals. The next meeting will be at Park Farm Hotel, Hethersett on July 11th when all are welcome.

Big Night for Hawks

By Mel Perkins

On Tuesday, April 19th, 1966, Hethersett Hawks entertained Norwich Ice-nians in the first-ever competitive match at the new cycle speedway track on the Memorial Playing Field. On the same date 50 years later, 20 current members aged from six to 62 rolled up for their regular Tuesday Club Night in glorious but chilly sunshine to find the night going with a fizz.

In addition to the normal mix of graded races, time trials, a manic nine-a-side relay race, handicap races and the popular 30-lap eliminator race, they, plus committee members and supporters, were treated to champagne, soft drinks and cakes to celebrate this very special anniversary for the village club started by a group of teenagers all those years ago.

This celebration was just the first of a series of events during the year to mark the anniversary. Five riders and two club officials are off to Poland to contest the European Club Championships, taking the Hawks team abroad for the first time. They are one of only four British Clubs making the trip.

The club will be having a day of special events on Saturday, May 21st, at the track and hope to welcome as many former riders as can make it to share their memories and maybe show their old skills on the track before a social evening at Hethersett Social Club.

On Sunday June 26th club members will parade through the village streets at the head of the annual Run-the-Square fun run which will be followed in the afternoon with the staging of the Norfolk Championships at the track. Later this year a book will be published cataloguing the history of the club.

The photographs printed in this article were taken at the special 50th anniversary club night.

Simply Champion

HETHERSETT Athletic Old Boys have retained their Norwich and District League Division One title after beating Aslacton Reserves 2-0 on the Memorial Field. Goals from Mori Elliott and Kevin Thurston made sure of the title as Old Boys ended their league season in style against the only team that could displace them at the top.

It is the first season that Old Boys have been part of the Hethersetts set-up, previously playing their football as Marlborough Old Boys. A number of the players come from the village and they applied to join the Hethersetts club from the start of this season. The league title was the first leg of a possible league and cup treble for the side.

They were due to play One Love United in the final of the F.J. Potter Cup on April 30th and Aslacton Reserves again in the final of the Shoe Trades Cup on
